STANDARDS

A. The standards are based on SAMHSA's (2012) four major dimensions that support a life in recovery, along with 10 identified guiding principles of recovery.

1. Four major dimensions that support a life in recovery:

- a. Health: Overcoming or managing one's disease(s) or symptoms, and making informed, healthy choices that support physical and emotional well-being;
- b. Home: A stable and safe place to live;
- c. Purpose: Meaningful daily activities, such as a job, school, volunteerism, family care-taking, or creative endeavors, and the independence, income and resources to participate in society;
- d. Community: Relationships and social networks that provide support, friendship, love, and hope.

2. Ten guiding principles of recovery:

- a. Recovery emerges from hope: The belief that recovery is real provides the essential and motivating message of a better future – that people can and do overcome the internal and external challenges, barriers and obstacles that confront them.
- b. Recovery is person-driven: Self-determination and self-direction are the foundations for recovery as individuals define their own life goals and design their unique path(s).
- c. Recovery occurs via many pathways: Individuals are unique with distinct needs, strengths, preferences, goals, culture and backgrounds including trauma experiences that affect and determine their pathway(s) to recovery. Abstinence is the safest approach for those with substance use disorders.
- d. Recovery is holistic: Recovery encompasses an individual's whole life, including mind, body, spirit and community. The array of services and supports available should be integrated and coordinated.
- e. Recovery is supported by peers and allies: Mutual support and mutual aid groups, including the sharing of experiential knowledge and skills, as well as social learning, play an invaluable role in recovery.

- f. Recovery is supported through relationships and social networks: An important factor in the recovery process is the presence and involvement of people who believe in the person's ability to recover, who offer hope, support and encouragement and who suggest strategies and resources for change.
- g. Recovery is culturally based and influenced: Culture and cultural background in all of its diverse representations including values, traditions and beliefs are keys in determining a person's journey and unique pathway to recovery.
- h. Recovery is supported by addressing trauma: Services and supports should be trauma-informed to foster safety (physical and emotional) and trust, as well as promote choice, empowerment and collaboration.
- i. Recovery involves individual, family, and community strengths and responsibility: Individuals, families and communities have strengths and resources that serve as a foundation for recovery.
- j. Recovery is based on respect: Community, systems and societal acceptance and appreciation for people affected by mental health and substance use problems including protecting their rights and eliminating discrimination are crucial in achieving recovery (SAMHSA, 2012).

B. All members of the workforce including office personnel, property caretakers, drivers and volunteers, security guards, secretarial, board members etc. shall:

- 1. Promote an environment for recovery relative to respective roles and duties.

- 3. Maintain records on individual's satisfaction and progress toward identified goals.
- 4. Specify how services are culturally relevant and based on the needs and choices as identified by the person, or where appropriate, their chosen supports and allies.
- 5. Provide evidence of promoting peer-led services and organizations. training and education.

- 1. Enact a policy that includes a continuous improvement process to integrate recovery dimension and principles into the organizational culture, i.e., governing documents, procedures, language, training curricula, documentation and assessments at the macro and micro levels.
- 2. Ensure delivery of a full array of services including peer and alternative services (e.g., pet therapy, holistic medicine), and ensure access and funding mechanisms exist to support access to chosen community services.

3. Demonstrate employment of a sufficient workforce of individuals with lived experiences throughout all levels of the organization who are paid fair and competitive wages, have multiple opportunities for a balance of full and part-time positions and are offered a viable career ladder.
4. Ensure that all position descriptions for all members of the workforce contain language of recovery.
5. Ensure that work responsibilities for all workforce members outline recovery-based, person-centered and culturally competent practices.
6. Ensure that job postings for all positions specify that persons with lived experiences with behavioral health issues are encouraged to apply and that job qualifications specify that lived experience with behavioral health conditions is desired.
7. Demonstrate evidence of collaborative agreements, communications and arrangements between substance use, mental health and primary care providers resulting in an integrated care plan for individuals.
8. Ensure participation in Authority protocols to measure and continuously improve the recovery environment.
